Leading a double life
Twindividuality is all about being best friends.

Sibling rivalry at a whole new level

Birth Order and their Future Careers

Most Popular Degree Choices:
- Science & Engineering
- Business
- Computer Science

+55% more likely to become a founder

Most Popular Degree Choices:
- Science & Engineering
- Business

+4% more likely to become a founder

Most Popular Degree Choices:
- Computer Science
- Business

-52% less likely to become a founder

Birth order determines deciding factors in personality making decisions with anything.

“I am very much a chameleon in my family. I feel like the middle child is ignored a lot but I am also a maker in my family. Older siblings tend to be bossy and controlling and I’m not like that,” senior Megan Upp said.

Middle children also have created quite the reputation. They tend to be better educated because they are the first born and their parents can only send one child to school, it will most likely be the oldest. Making more money later in life also generally involves the oldest child.

Even without the education, first borns tend to be naturally smarter than their siblings.

“I don’t really like being the oldest child because my younger sister gets spoiled by my family instead of me. I would be busy towards my little sister,” sophomore Ashlyn Schultz said.

The more of the subject of birth order and personality is researched, the more scientists can see how big of a connection there really is between them.