LINCOLN, NE — The Nebraska School Activities Association is proud to recognize Cherie Kreikemeier of Guardian Angels Central Catholic as this week's Above and Beyond Award nominee.

For more than 35 years, Cherie has worked tirelessly to provide meaningful, positive youth sports opportunities in the West Point community, leaving a lasting impact on generations of students and families.

Cherie's service touches nearly every level of athletics. She has coached junior high and youth teams, organized youth tournaments, led camps, and overseen the USVBA program. She also serves as a trusted bookkeeper for high school volleyball and basketball games.

No matter the role, Cherie approaches every task with the same energy, care, and unmistakable positivity. Whether she is coordinating a large youth tournament or washing uniforms during state events, no job is ever too big or too small.

What makes Cherie truly special is her servant's heart. She has never taken payment for any of the countless roles she fills and continually gives back to the church and school she loves. Her dedication is rooted in love for kids, faith, and community, and it shows in everything she does. Cherie creates a team-first, God-centered environment where students can grow, compete, and have fun.

Those who know Cherie admire her not only for how much she does, but how she does it. Her work is always done with a smile, a kind word, and an encouraging presence that lifts everyone around her. She is a positive ray of sunshine at every event and a role model for players, coaches, and parents alike.

For many in the GACC community, Cherie's impact is deeply personal. She helped create opportunities for students decades ago, and today, those same opportunities exist for the next generation. Cherie Kreikemeier represents everything you hope for in an ambassador of Guardian Angels Central Catholic - selfless, tireless, and committed to serving others without expecting anything in return.

Cherie truly goes Above and Beyond every single day, and the NSAA is honored to recognize her extraordinary dedication and lasting legacy.
